Focusing on front-end web development, I recently graduated highschool and I started a Full Stack Web Development from University of New Hampshire. I am eager to learn more about the front-end and I am determined to jump start my career in web development, focusing on mobile friendly applications as well as desktop. I enjoy working with others and hearing teammates' thoughts, I can also work well alone, and complete tasks given to me. I like to get straight to work and I see myself as a very creative person because I like to go above and beyond and add attention to detail.
